

What is U3A?

The University of the Third Age is an international volunteer co-operative organisation devoted to healthy and productive ageing which provides learning activities to members.

The word University is only used in the original sense to describe a community sharing knowledge. Anyone can join as there are no pre-requisites nor any degrees given.

Third Age refers to active retirees or semi-retired persons who want to continue learning in an informal environment and share in social activities

Take a bit, give a bit

A time to share with the local community your lifetime skills and knowledge, by tutoring or leading a class or adding value as a member.

We are one, we are many

While operating in-dependently, each member U3A is supported by the U3A Network Victoria which provides organisational and planning support as well as being a focus for broader relationships with affiliates, partners and Government on behalf of member U3As Victoria has more than 100 U3As We are Number 101
